

Biden Forgets What Day It Is – Immediately Suffers The Consequences

June 7, 2021

What can you say about a president who remembers a country’s “sins” but not its victories? It seems like every chance Joe Biden has, he reminds the nation about all the wrongs it has committed and all the problems it faces. But rarely does he want to inspire hope in Americans’, by recounting all the good we’ve accomplished.

Since entering office, Joe Biden has yammered on and on about COVID-19. Despite the fact that things are much different than they were in March 2020, Biden continues to pretend like the sky is falling. He seems to think that Americans are still hunkered in their homes, afraid to leave (or at least he hopes they are).

But that’s just the tip of the iceberg, of course. Biden frequently talks about our problems—and how the only solutions, apparently, are massive government programs that will spend trillions of dollars.

Even on a day millions honor a great moment in our history, Biden ignored to tweet about a negative event instead.

President Joe Biden tweeted a video Sunday of his meeting last week with survivors of the Tulsa Race Massacre, but did not mention that June 6 was also the anniversary of D-Day, the U.S.-led invasion of Normandy in the Second World War...

None of Biden's Twitter accounts — @JoeBiden, @POTUS, @WhiteHouse — had commemorated D-Day by 6:30 p.m Eastern time. A search of the White House website also showed no statements...

For reference, President Donald Trump mentioned D-Day every year that he was in the White House..

*Since taking office, Biden has emphasized the flaws in American history over the successes. Within hours of taking the oath of office, he had deleted the report of the 1776 Commission, which sought to restore the place of American values and heroes in public discourse and school curricula. (The report is still available at the website of Hillsdale College.) Biden has repeatedly emphasized the importance of "systemic racism" to understanding the United States and its history. Now, why would President Trump tweet about D-Day every year he was president, but Joe Biden forget? I think you know the answer to that. Donald Trump is a patriot who goes out of his way to honor our nation's heroes.

Joe Biden is a corrupt globalist stooge who only cares about pushing his socialist agenda. If he bothered to honor our country, it might actually undermine his narrative that America is "broken" and needs his help to reshape it.

Even the numbskull Kamala Harris tweeted about D-Day. But Joe Biden didn't? What idiot intern forgot to post something for the old man? At the very least, post one of those images of the American flag and the words "Never Forget." Do something.

But this is exactly what we'd expect from a confused old man with dementia, who thinks he's FDR. America deserves better than that.
